Welcome from the President,
Beth A. Rubin, University of North Carolina at Charlotte

Welcome to the 75th Annual Meeting of the Southern Sociological Society in New Orleans, LA! It is a thrill for me to host our annual meetings in one of my very favorite cities. If you haven’t fallen in love with New Orleans so far, I hope you do so this time. Even more than enjoying this wonderful city, I think you will be really excited by a terrific program. As always, the challenge is how to fit both in-enjoying all of the intellectual riches this program offers and those (perhaps less intellectual) that the City of New Orleans offers.

The theme for the meeting, Shifting Social Contracts, is reflected in a number of intellectually exciting sessions, plenaries, mini-conferences and special panels. Plenary speakers include incoming ASA President Cecilia Ridgeway, Rubén Rumbaut, and Joane Nagel, focusing on shifting social contracts around gender, ethnic inequalities and the environment respectively. There are also exciting presidential plenary panels, one considering the shifting contracts in education, focusing on possible resegregation of public schools, and another presidential plenary panel addressing shifting social contracts in higher education with Teresa Sullivan and Suzanne Ortega sharing their hard-won insights. Besides plenary sessions, addressing the meeting theme, there are three mini-conferences, one on Work, Inequality and Shifting Social Contracts; a second one on Teaching Sociology, co-sponsored by the Committee on Sociology in Community and Small Colleges; and a third on Gender and the Family, with sessions co-sponsored by Sociologists for Women in Society-South and the Committee on the Status of Women. The mini-conferences are open to all participants and will be occurring alongside the many other regular sessions. Among some of the other program highlights are clusters of sessions on Human Rights, Small Group Processes and Theory; sessions honoring the memories of Ron Wimerly and April Brayfield; a session that brings together some of our most distinguished sociologists, Melvin Kohn, Sheldon Stryker, Ida Harper Simpson, John Shelton Reed and Edward Tiryakian as well as a number of really terrific Author Meets Critics sessions. There are so many other wonderful and stimulating sessions on education, social movements, crime, mental health, media, family, social inequality, culture, religion, race and ethnicity and more. I am also really excited to see how our newest innovation, the research incubators, works out. There are research incubator sessions on small groups and social psychology, social movements, political sociology, and criminal justice among others.

As my predecessors in this position have learned, putting together the annual meetings and running this society happens because of the incredible commitment, hard work, and energy of our membership. Not only do their efforts contribute to the ongoing life of our organization but their very hard work ensured that this fabulous program came together and did so on time. I am so incredibly grateful for the work that each of these people has done. So I will repeat what previous presidents have said: when you see any of these people during the next few days, please thank them not only for their hard work but for doing it so very well:

- The Program Committee listed at the outset of this program, especially the co-chairs Elizabeth Stearns and Stephanie Moller, mini-conference organizers Vincent Roscigno, Steven Vallas, Donald Tomaskovic-Devey, Marni Brown, Kris DeWelde, Emily Fairchild, and Amie Hess, as well as David Brunsma for taking the lead on the human rights sessions.
- The Local Arrangements Committee, especially the chair, Sue Mennino
- The Vice President: Toni Calasanti
- Secretary-Treasurer: Stephanie Bohon
- Presidential Aide: Tonya Frevert
- George Wilson and Denise Cobb for their work on the membership survey.
- And the many other committee chairs and executive committee members of SSS that keep the organization functioning behind the scenes, and always with the well being of the society and its members at the forefront of their planning and deliberations.

Now enjoy the meetings and New Orleans!!
