Welcome from the President, Donald Tomaskovic-Devey, University of Massachusetts, Amherst

The Annual Meeting of the Southern Sociological Society is 76 years young as we gather once again in Atlanta. The Hyatt Regency has had a facelift since we last visited and is simply gorgeous! Even more than enjoying this fancy hotel and vibrant city, I hope you share my excitement around our terrific program. As always the program reflects the diversity and intellectual vibrancy of our membership. Please take the time to sample the sundry stimulating sessions, but do not forget to take time to meet and greet old friends and new. On Thursday evening at 5:30 there is the Southern Jam Session in International North with plenty of room to socialize, a cash bar, and even free drinks for early arrivals! This is followed by the Student Reception upstairs at Max Lagers, a restaurant across the street and down the block to the right from the Hyatt. Food and beverages provided. Everyone is welcome. Friday evening there will be a reception in International South, this time at 7pm right after the Presidential Honors and Convocation Plenary. More food and beverages, and you need not have gone to my talk, but I hope you do.

Our program features a plenary session by ASA President-elect Annette Lareau “The Search for a Good School: Class, Families, and the Reproduction of Inequality”. The theme for the meeting, Relational Inequality, is further reflected in many member generated sessions and in three presidential plenary panels focusing on relation inequality in theory, at work, and in intimate relationships. There are three mini-conferences as well, one each focusing on social psychology, social networks and teaching. The mini-conferences are open to all participants and will be occurring alongside the many other regular sessions. Architecturally the whole conference is organized thematically. Steve McDonald our valiant program chair has worked diligently to arrange sessions that share substantive content sequentially in both time and space. So the odds are good that if you are presenting in a session, the sessions that precede and follow yours will be of interest and conveniently located in the same room!

Putting together the annual meetings and running this society happens because of the incredible commitment, hard work, and energy of our members. Not only do your efforts contribute to the ongoing life of the SSS but in a tangible way the program reflects the intellectual network that is the SSS family. Particular people, of course, worked particularly hard this year for the SSS. If you see them say thank you to:

- The Program Committee listed at the outset of this program, but especially program chair Steve McDonald and his graduate student assistant Lindsay Hamm.
- James Ainsworth, who organized local arrangements
- The Vice President: Bill Danaher, responsible for the multiple musical interludes
- Executive Officer, Dave Brunsm, and Assistant Executive Officer, J. Slade Lellock
- And the many volunteer and elected committee members that keep the organization functioning

Welcome to SSS 2013!

| 58. | Professional Workshop: Preparing for a Program Review - Workshop - Harris | Edward L. Kain, Southwestern University | |  | This session is a professional workshop that will help you prepare for a program review. It is useful for department/program chairs and faculty members who have an upcoming external review of the sociology program. The workshop has four major sections: First, there will be a discussion of the broad context of program review. Second, the basic assumptions and principles of program evaluation will be examined. Third, we’ll talk about a set of resources from the American Sociological Association that can be helpful in program review. The bulk of the workshop will focus upon the fourth section. In this part of the workshop, participants will be provided with resources for each part of the process-planning for a program review, activities for the on-campus visit of the external reviewer, and post-visit activities. The workshop will be tailored to those who attend, with lots of time for questions. |

This workshop will explore various techniques useful for teaching about inequality. Participants will actively engage in creating approaches, materials, assignments, and active learning exercises for teaching inequality. Workshop leaders will facilitate rotating break-out sessions to focus on particular strategies. Participants will be able to choose to focus on critical pedagogies, effectively using on-line materials, and/or using a large variety of Inquiry Guided Learning approaches. In all, workshop participants will discover ways to guide students toward developing an understanding of relational inequality, fostering critical thinking, disciplinary skills and self-knowledge.
