

The Department of Sociology and Anthropology at North Carolina State University is accepting applications for an Assistant Professor (tenure-track) appointment to begin August 16, 2010. The successful candidate should be prepared to teach at least one course in our graduate core offerings in methods/analysis. Preference will be given to candidates who have research and teaching interests in inequality, especially race/ethnicity. Candidates whose research interests are consistent with the university's initiatives in promoting citizens' well being or protecting the environment will receive top priority.

Candidate qualifications for the position include (1) a Ph.D. in Sociology, (2) a strong record of research and publication with an excellent record of extramural research funding or promise of such funding, and (3) potential to mentor graduate students and teaching excellence at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.

To apply please visit: <http://jobs.ncsu.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind=84904>.

You will be asked to upload a curriculum vitae and a letter of application describing your research and teaching interests. Final candidates will be asked to provide a minimum of three letters of reference within two weeks from notification.

North Carolina State University is the largest public university in North Carolina and is located in the heart of the Research Triangle offering excellent area amenities; visit our website at <http://sociology.chass.ncsu.edu/>. Formal screening of applications will begin December 1, 2009 and will continue until the position is filled. NCSU is an Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action Employer and welcomes all persons without regard to sexual orientation. For ADA accommodation, contact Human Resources at (919) 515-2135.