

Tenure Track Opening –Assistant Professor of Sociology at

Northeastern University in Boston

The Department of Sociology and Anthropology announces a tenure-track opening for an Assistant Professor of Sociology, beginning in the Fall of 2010. Areas of specialization are open, but we particularly encourage applications from candidates with expertise in one of the following areas: racial and ethnic relations; deviance and social control; or conflict and violence. Candidates should have a record of scholarly accomplishment or the clear potential for distinction with respect to research. Although all methodological orientations will be considered, we encourage applications from candidates with strong backgrounds in quantitative research. Candidates should also have substantial experience in, and a demonstrated commitment to, diversity in the academic environment. Women and members of historically excluded groups are especially encouraged to apply. Northeastern University is a large and growing private institution located in the heart of Boston. The Department houses two dozen faculty members and a well-established PhD program in sociology. Members of the Department benefit from multiple interdisciplinary linkages to programs in African American Studies, the Institute for Race and Justice, the Women's Studies Program, the Dukakis Center for Urban and Regional Policy, the College of Criminal Justice, and the Brudnick Center for the Study of Violence, among many others. The PhD in Sociology must be in hand at the time of appointment.

Please send an application letter, c.v., writing samples, syllabi, and three letters of reference to: Professor Ineke Marshall, Sociology Search Committee, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, 360 Huntington Avenue, 500 Holmes Hall, Northeastern University, Boston MA 02115. Review of applications will begin September 1, 2009 and continue until the position is filled.

Published on Southern Sociological Society website and listserv at 3:30pm on 7-27-09

www.southernsociologicalsociety.org