

University of Cincinnati. The Department of Sociology invites applicants for three tenure-track positions in urban inequality to begin August 1, 2012. Two positions will be at the Assistant Professor level and one at the Associate Professor level. Assistant Professor candidates should have the potential for or an initial record pointing toward their becoming leading scholars and generating external research funding. A PhD in Sociology by July 31, 2012 is required. Associate Professor candidates should have substantial scholarly reputations and a record of garnering external funding. For all positions, excellence in teaching is expected.

Along with current faculty, these positions will comprise a cluster of faculty with interests in urban inequality. Hence, preference will be given to candidates with a primary scholarly focus in urban inequality. Secondary scholarly interests in family, gender, health/medicine, immigration, race/ethnicity, social movements, or work are desirable. The Department of Sociology is interested in increasing racial and ethnic diversity among its faculty, so candidates of color are especially encouraged to apply.

The University of Cincinnati is a public research university with a diverse student body in the heart of Cincinnati, a beautiful river city that combines the amenities of a major metropolis with a small-town cost of living. Sociology is a PhD-granting department (artsci.uc.edu/sociology) with a standard 2-2 teaching load, though this is typically reduced for junior faculty. The department houses the endowed Kunz Center for Social Research (artsci.uc.edu/sociology/kunz/index.html), which supports faculty and graduate student research. Sociology is also one of twelve departments affiliated with the Charles Phelps Taft Research Center (artsci.uc.edu/taft), which disburses over one million dollars per year in research and travel grants to faculty and students.

Applicants must apply online with a cover letter and vitae. In addition, please have three letters of recommendation mailed to Ms. Kimberly Raterman, Department of Sociology, University of Cincinnati, PO Box 210378, Cincinnati, OH 45221-0378 (phone: 513-5564721; fax: 513-556-0057; e-mail: kimberly.raterman@uc.edu). Please do NOT send writing samples or other materials unless the recruitment committee requests them.

Assistant Professor applicants must submit a cover letter and vitae to <https://www.jobsatuc.com> position #211UC1629. The committee will start reviewing applications on October 3, 2011. The final deadline to apply for the assistant professor positions is October 16, 2011.

Associate Professor applicants must submit a cover letter and vitae to <https://www.jobsatuc.com> position #211UC1630. Review of applications for the associate professor position will begin October 3, 2011 and will continue until the position is filled.

The University of Cincinnati is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Women, People of Color, persons with a disability, and Vietnam Era and veterans who are disabled are encouraged to apply.